InfoCision Executives Share Company's Highest Honor Mike Stokes and Mike Eastman receive Carol J. Byrd award

Akron, Ohio, January 2, 2008 – Mike Stokes, vice president of teleservices and Mike Eastman, director of client services for InfoCision Management Corporation's communications and financial services division were recently named employees of the year for 2007. Stokes, a resident of Jackson Township and Eastman of North Canton received the Carol J. Byrd Award, the company's highest employee honor.

Stokes and Eastman combined to lead InfoCision's communications and financial services division to its best year to date. In 2007, the division more than doubled the sales it achieved in the previous year. The combined talents of both men led to increased business from many of InfoCision's largest clients.

"Overall, Mike Stokes meets every challenge with a solution-oriented attitude and focuses on satisfying our clients," said InfoCision President and CEO Carl Albright. "His spirit of partnership with all the departments he works with has fostered the tremendous growth of every single client in the communications and financial services division."

"Mike Eastman's genuine concern for everyone he oversees allows them to grow both personally and professionally," said Albright. "Most importantly, he never loses sight of our goals as a company and can effectively share our successful model of quality and return on investment with clients."

The Carol J. Byrd Award is named after former InfoCision Vice President of Operations Carol Byrd, who died in 1993.
